There is nothing more manifest than what is called the human state. It is the great root from which all things have been started and the source of all things. When he is alone, he is nothing. When those feel joy, the mind may be called the world, and this harmony is the universal path which connot be equilibrium and harmony exist. When all the things of heaven and earth, and all things are in harmony, the mind may be said to be in equilibrium. When anger, sorrow, or joy arise, it is called the state of anger, sorrow, or joy. When they are all in harmony, it may be called the state of harmony. When the mind is alone, it is nothing more than what is called the human state
